Global Gophers Interviewed on Expats Radio

Global Gophers, the international personal shopper service, was recently interviewed by Expats Radio, and the interview is now featured live on www.expatsradio.com and on www.globalgophers.com. The Global Gophers international shopping service is perfect for expatriates unable to get the goods they want from home, and appeals to listeners of Expats Radio.

The interview highlighted the history of Global Gophers, which was formed by Sam Martell after moving to American from England. The company has now expanded into 5 countries and offers a unique approach to shopping abroad.

Global Gophers offers a unique and exciting service which allows customers to request items from any of 5 countries, either from the store or from online merchants, and have the items shipped to them anywhere in the world. No longer do customers need to make do with what's available in their own country; with Global Gophers shopping is truly a global experience. Expats Radio is a new radio station catering to expats around the world and located at www.expatsradio.com.

The broadcast is available on the EPR website <http://www.expatsradio.com/>
